

I had a couple reasons to go back and look at some old presentations and speeches I gave during the Broadcast.com and my few Yahoo days. I was curious to see if anything i predictedended up happening, and how off i was on everything else.

It was kind of interesting, and even refreshing in some cases. Rather than rehash them all, i decided to take advantage of my buddies over at Box.net, with whom I back up my life, and just let them host the files and let you download them.

I doubt they will be as entertaining to others as they were to me, but heck, you never know. Flashbacks can be fun is the link. Download away.

<http://www.box.net/public/pk7a5ysel6>

And of course, feel free to sign up for an account at Box.net, or if you want need something that fits more into a corporate, rather than individual online hosting environment, you can try out the in depth storage options at filesanywhere.com